

What made you apply to participate in this research study?

Our daughter is a research scientist and I have come to understand the vital necessity for researchers to have ready access to pools of volunteers for their studies. The COVID vaccine study was particularly pertinent to me as my family is widespread, both nationally and internationally. I foresaw all the difficulties that we would experience in being able to travel to visit one another without vaccination. I was personally very invested in the positive outcome of this trial!

I feel really honoured to have been able to contribute in my small way to the amazing huge international scientific effort to develop vaccines during this worldwide epidemic.

I found Paratus Clinical to be very professional in their administration of the study. Communication with the clinical team, via phone or email, was always straightforward and reliable. All instructions and procedures were clear to follow.

I would rate my overall experience at Paratus Clinical as very positive. Indeed, I would be very happy to participate in any other research study conducted by Paratus Clinical.
